

The Holiday Party Bandit

There are very few people in the world who spy out companies best Holiday parties, and then try to get a job with them based on that fact alone.

We finally found him though. He usually applies for a job in early November, showing up sparked and enthusiastic for a new 'life long ' experience with his new company. He makes friends readily and has an unusually high intellect; geared entirely at getting the most out of the Holiday season before he departs to find yet another great company hosting a wild holiday party season. We believe that he has the ability to hibernate during the long work weary summer months, much like a bear and re-emerges newly spry to munch and drink his way through the holiday season. We found him last year, tracking him deep in the Maine woods where just outside his den is a huge amount of gift paper and sundry elements associated the holiday season; paper hats, party whistles, piles of cookie plates covered with cinnamon and powdered confection. He is the Holiday Party Bandit.

He has been spotted years past at parties hosted by such corporate giants as IBM, the NFL, and was noted as a personal favorite at Carnival Cruise Ship party headquarters. Noting he usually gets into companies so big that no one in the world knows who you are anyway, slipping in and out like a seal in the ocean. But this year, Viva Kittery special Holiday tracker found him.

AND NOW we asking for the public to come and help us keep him from disappearing from the arduous summer labors to make sure this 'Holiday Bandit^ actually has to work all year. We scored an exclusive photo of this chap and are posting it (with permission from the National Holiday Party association) ...to help stop this Holiday Bandit.