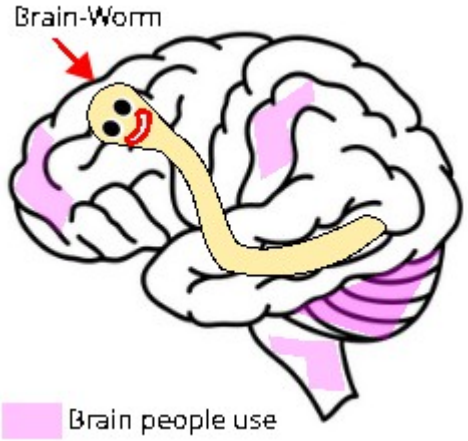
Drink Beet Juice



Our very own Viva Kittery health reporter, Worthy Simpson, has come across a disturbing health fact that " they" don't want you to know!

A Co-parabolic Brain worm discovered recently has Worthy scratching his head..and drinking Beet juice by the gallon!

The official name of this brain worm is Co-parabiosis Brain-worm..

You have all heard that in general people only use less than a percent of their brain during their life. This brain worm targets the parts of the brain you don't use, so you never notice its there. There's no way of getting rid of this worm that lives in your brain. And there's no way of knowing you have a brain-worm because doctors are not allowed to tell you even if they prove you have it.

One doctor stated..yeah...these brain-worms are not covered by insurance yet..soooo the chances of treating it are extremely low.. we usually say you have anxiety..or some kind of memory disease..long term types. Brain-worms have incephalopod characteristics...meaning small pod break off end crawl out by ears..nose and throat where they have an opportunity to launch ..up to six feet and crawl into the brain of the guy next to you. There are male and female worms Worthy noted... the male worms go live in men's brain while the female worms go live in women's brains.

We are starting to realize that by living in the unused parts of the brain in a neblutonic relationship..intertwining that is... that these worms might be responsible for actually using the host as an unknown ...like having another " person" living inside you.

We think these brain-worms are responsible for many of today's issues.. like not being able to make up your mind..not making the choices that you really want to make but do anyway..and hundreds of such type issues. Don't worry though..if a brain-worm is detected "they" won't tell you anyway...

All we know is that Beet juice drives them out!!, Worthy will update the public as more facts appear!!!
