

Six Feet

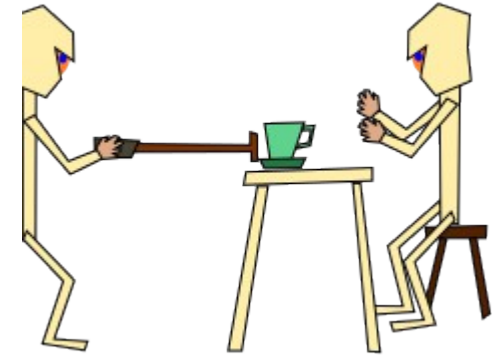

Viva Kittery's very own "about town reporter" Syla Knotts is contributing a wonderful article about the "good things" covid brought.

Other than a lot of future speculation, an outcome of covid that seems to be working well is the 6 feet "apart" paradox .. Sylvia added, we don't know yet, but the 6 feet paradox could evolve into a nationally based "disability" where people who file for damages might well find themselves 6 feet away from poverty as an added check may be in their future!! Too early to tell but it's something in the works Sylvia said.

Despite any financial boom-towns, covid's six feet paradox has done a great deal of good and has also pointed to shallow social euphemisms where it "failed".. Listed as the good is as follows.

1..married couples who stay six feet apart have a 20 year advantage added to their relationship.

2. Square dancing looks more like ballet with the new 6 foot paradox.

3. Sheriffs are having a hard time handing paperwork in person as they have to throw it at you from 6 feet away... more like a paperboy which is causing them counseling issues.

4. Aliens are having issues because they don't know what 6 feet means. So abductions have gone down from 11 to zero...for now..

5. People with severe halitosis can laugh out loud now at parties... lol

6. The best one yet is the inventor of the “covid hand me that”... a small stretcher that allows you to slide something to someone six feet away. Just secure your coffee lids!!

7. The last great 6 foot paradox.. but failure is having to blow someone a handshake. We got blowing kisses down but the handshake is a tough one.. looks threatening shaking your fist in the air!!

Syliva had four more... but ended up in a covid coughing fit and sent the article in anyway.

Thanks Sylvia!! Viva Kittery!
