Work @ HOME

On the street..literally.. Viva Kittery reporter Stan Corbitz has found an alarming new circumstance of " working from home" ..

Bank employees are now opting to all work from home. The world bank agreed its better to work from home than quitting entirely so ... bankers are going to work from HOME!

What does this entail????! Is the big question..and there is a bigger answer oddly enough.

First of all..Stan went to make a deposit at " the bank".. he was referred to the nearest teller.. @ home... 35 miles away.

Upon getting to the tellers house there was a large cardboard sign.. small deposits please put in mailbox and make sure you put your phone number down in case we have a question..

Stan had a small deposit of 614 dollars and 33 cents.. But is it considered small he wondered. The driveway had a scenario of kids bikes. Old tires and broke up camper... the door was hanging off its hinges and there were two unfriendly looking dogs jumping on his car barking wildly.

Beeping his horn at the front door.. he yelled over the barking dogs..

how much is a small deposit?

Someone at the front window held out a sign.. again a piece of cardboard drawn on with a crayon.. up to 800 is small deposit.. then very quickly another sign appeared.. write down your phone number!!

Stan then backed up ..back down the driveway.. but the dogs were still snarling so he couldn't put the money in the mailbox. Lucky he had a box of old dog biscuits and threw them out the window into the field.. to buy enough time to make his deposit..

Stan got the money into the mailbox and was driving home..

He screamed in his head.. dammit i forgot to write down .my phone number !!@@@
